

Industry Expert on Board

Polytype Converting has further strengthened its sales force with the recruitment of Fabian Umbach, a renowned industry expert. Fabian has many years of experience in various areas of the converting industry.

After studying mechanical engineering, he gained experience in project management at Pagendarm. Afterwards, he held further positions with leading manufacturers of self-adhesive labels in Germany and abroad. Fabian's career also included several years of successful work in the sales department of a manufacturer of extrusion and converting equipment.

The experience gained in our industry makes Fabian a valuable contact person for our customers in the international environment. We are pleased that we were able to win him over for the expansion of our team.
